More Folk Music

• I watched your program Parade (Wednesday, February 13, CBC-TV), in which Pete Seeger was featured in Two Links In A Chain. It was excellent and I think there should be more programs of folk music on television and radio. I am sure I am just one of the many who would hold this opinion. Thank you for the enjoyable, but too-brief half-hour.

—Miss J.M., Shellbrook, Sask.

Youth Concert

• On Sunday, March 10, (CBC-TV), your program Youth Concert, hosted by Harry Somers, aroused my feelings to a writing point. I never enjoyed a program so much before. It was moving, inspiring and spell-binding entertainment which I cannot imagine being excelled. I hope at some future date you can repeat this hour of sheer delight which contrasts so sharply with the majority of popular programs.

—B.S.W., Sedgewick, Alta.

The Authentic Touch

• I have been enjoying the vastly improved Red River Jamboree, (Saturdays, CBC-TV). You have got away from the false Hollywood glamour and have acquired the authentic touch (I was on the prairies in 1905). Your program is far more enjoyable than those we get over the four American channels available here.

—N.S., Vancouver

The Hopeless Hour

• Postmark U.K. used to be heard in Alberta at noon. Nowadays it is broadcast at 8:30 a.m., which for a Sunday morning, is a hopeless hour. Maybe the folk in Upper Canada get up this early, but out here only condemned criminals and bus drivers venture out. When the program schedule is next revised we hope that Postmark U.K. may be re-assigned to its former time.

—D.L., Calgary

• In a period when it is very evident the CBC is having difficulties in maintaining a good standard of programs, it seems strange that you persist in burying some of your best items. Why move Postmark U.K. to 8:35 a.m. on Sundays?—An hour when many business folk have the morning to rest a bit later. Yet we get a lot of tripe we could dispense with happily. . . . It is not difficult to have this excellent British-originated item taped west for broadcast later on Sunday or at a better hour on another day of the week. We could certainly do with some of the Toronto talent left out. Many Canadians are of British origin or have visited the old country and enjoyed it.

The Endless Echo

• I have just watched Festival's presentation of The Endless Echo, (Monday, March 11, CBC-TV), and wish to express my congratulations as well as to tell you of my enjoyment and satisfaction from watching it. The acting was superb and the idea of transposing an ancient drama into a modern setting was splendid. I have only praise and admiration for a performance such as this, and I hope that more dramas of this nature may be seen in the future.

—E.H.E., Winnipeg

What the Average Canadian Wants

• I must lodge a protest against the type of plays being shown on Festival, Quest and sometimes, Playdate. That Endless Echo bilge on Festival (Monday, March 11, CBC-TV), was the last straw! Twenty minutes of that was all I could take.

In my opinion . . . these plays are disgusting obscenity presented under the guise of art. . . . For those who are addicted to that sort of thing, there is a wealth of material on the book stands and magazine racks. Let's keep television clean for Mr. and Mrs. Average Canadian and family. Give us more plays like The Cowboy and Mr. Anthony, (Playdate, March 7, CBC-TV), and no more The Endless Echo, Venus Observed and things of that ilk.

There must be something wrong when we can devote 90 minutes to vulgar trash and can only allot 30 minutes to shows like The Nature of Things, Front Page Challenge and Flashback. . . . In Canada we have the talent to produce good plays. We get more than enough of sin and violence from the U.S. imports. . . .

—Mrs. R.C.D., Lloydminster.

ON OUR COVER . . .

Many Programs Mark Holy Week

Our full-colour cover draws attention to the special programming scheduled throughout Holy Week on CBC Television and Radio.

Among those attending the CBC's seminar on production of religious television programs, March 20, were: Rev. Ken Chittick, St. Mary's Cathedral; Rev. R. Jacob, Lutheran Church of the Cross; Rabbi N. J. Fredman, Talmud Torah Synagogue; Rev. D. L. Brown, St. Andrew's River Heights United; and Rev. Paul Maluga, C.Ss.R., St. Joseph's Ukrainian Catholic Church. All were from metropolitan Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG CLERGYMEN are adding professional polish to their appearances on CBWT's Devotions, part of the daily sign-on and sign-off of the station. The reason: they have taken a CBC short-course that enables them to make full use of the television medium for religious broadcasting.

The ministers making appearances on the Devotions series met March 20 for a full-day seminar in which they heard addresses by CBC producers Neil Andrews and Perry Rosemond, re-examined successful programs in the series from past months, and had an intensive look at the CBC's facilities for production of religious programs. They concluded the day by splitting into two groups to produce "sample" Devotions programs utilizing the techniques they had discussed.

IN THE FOUR years that CBC Radio's Talent Festival has been on the air, CBC auditioners have discovered a wealth of Canadian talent in the ranks of singers and instrumentalists across the country. During every fall-winter season since 1959, dozens of young artists have appeared before CBC microphones, competing for first prizes of $1,000 and second prizes of $250 in the categories of singers and instrumentalists.

Preparation of the Talent Festival series gets under way some months prior to the beginning of each broadcast season, and all applicants are screened by a panel of musicians before being asked to take part in the broadcasts. Auditions for the 1963-64 series will be undertaken during April and May in 11 cities across Canada. Dr. Geoffrey Waddington, CBC director of music, and Carl Little, music program organizer, will assist in auditioning all candidates for the coming fall-winter season. CBC producer Tom Taylor will take part in auditioning Western Canadian applicants.

To be eligible, candidates must be less than 30 years of age, Canadian citizens, and must not have appeared in an important solo capacity on the CBC's national networks.

In the Prairie Region, auditions will be held in the following cities on the dates indicated: Winnipeg, April 29 and 30; Regina, May 1;

Saskatoon, May 2; Calgary, May 3; and Edmonton, May 4.

Instrumental and vocal soloists wishing further details and a copy of the conditions of entry should phone or write: Winnipeg, CBC, 541 Portage Ave., SP 4-2541; Regina, CBC, 1840 McIntyre St., LA 3-6641; Saskatoon, Manager, Radio Station CFQC, 242-6611; Edmonton, CBC, Room 713, MacDonald Hotel, 469-2321; Calgary, L. C. Bailey, technical director, Video Delay Centre, 1724 Westmount Blvd., AT 3-6060.

The most ambitious single project in the history of Canadian broadcasting will climax Monday night, April 8, with the reporting of election results across the country. Even the Relay satellite will come into service to bring live televised comment from Europe.

THE DRAMATIC TENSION that has been building up on a national scale in recent weeks reaches its peak on April 8, when Canadian voters go to the polls to choose those who will form their government in the months to come. And on that day, CBC news staff will face their toughest assignment: giving a clear picture of the election race as it develops, the climax to weeks of intense activity on the campaign trail leading up to the election.

CBC Election Night coverage will feature, for the first time, live TV and radio reports from all 10 provinces and from Europe.

"Our television coverage of all 10 provinces will be a unique feature, something only the national system can lay on," said General News Editor D. J. Macdonald, who is co-ordinating CBC network election services. "For the first time, CBC television will have men reporting directly from Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. In past elections we have had to depend on Halifax to cover all three Maritime provinces. Now, with expanded technical facilities, live reports will come in from Charlottetown and Saint John—quite an advance over the first television coverage of the election 10 years ago, which was confined to stations in Toronto and Montreal.

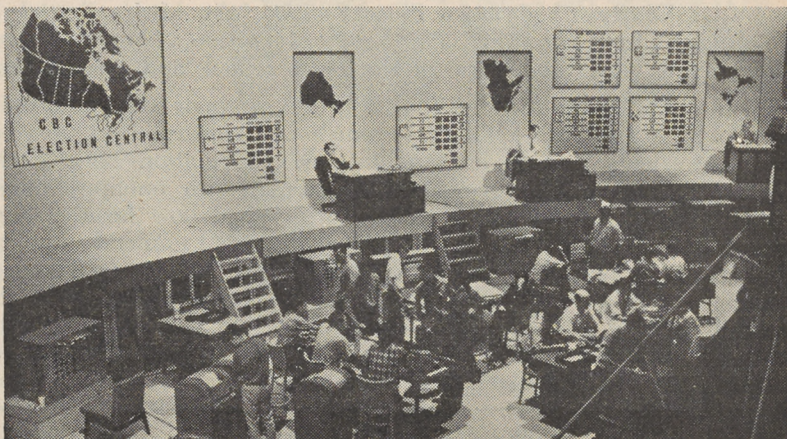

Radio and television broadcasts will begin at 7:00 p.m. local time in every part of Canada (8:00 p.m. on Saskatchewan, Grande Prairie and Peace River stations), starting in Newfoundland and progressing westward by time zones. As the polls close in the Atlantic time zone, coverage will start in the Maritimes, from CBC Halifax. When the polls close in Quebec and Ontario, viewers and listeners will be taken immediately to the Maritimes and to Newfoundland, where ballot-counting will have been underway for an hour-and-a-half. Each successive hour, on the hour, coverage will be extended westward into the other time zones—Central, Mountain, Pacific and Yukon—and the broadcasts will continue until the make-up of Canada's 26th Parliament is known and the complete national story has been reported. The coverage will include on-the-spot statements by the four major party leaders.

As reported in an earlier CBC Times Story, the U.S. National Aeronautical and Space Administration's communications satellite, Relay, will be used to convey French and British reaction to the Canadian election. At the same time, CBC's International Service will be broadcasting reports on the election to Europe and other continents.

On election night, CBC Election Central in Toronto looks and sounds like a stock exchange.

A vast array of complex technical equipment will be employed in interpreting the statistics. Returns will flow into the IBM data processing centre in downtown Toronto where, at the touch of a button, an IBM 1401 computer will provide popular-vote percentages or scan the overall flow of returns, make comparisons with the results of previous elections and project the probable make-up of the new Parliament. CBC will rely mainly on its own newsrooms and special communications facilities for gath-

The Passion Of Jesus And Its Meaning

CBC RADIO presents
two programs
marking Holy Week

TWO MAJOR Holy Week programs presented by CBC Radio are THE PASSION OF JESUS, Sunday, April 7, at 8:00 p.m. on CBC STAGE, and A MEDITATION ON THE PASSION, on CBC Wednesday Night, April 10, at 9:00 p.m. John Reeves has written the following preface to the two programs:

It is my hope that some listeners will be able to hear both these programs. Each is self-contained and can stand on its own. But taken together they complement one another and constitute a whole.

The first of the two programs is a simple telling of the passion story as told in the New Testament, with occasional glosses of prophetic sayings from the Old Testament and interpolations of plainsong. The entire text is taken from the Wyclif translation of the Bible, which belongs to the latter half of the 14th century.

The second program derives almost entirely from the same period, though one or two of the sources antedate 1350. The passion having been narrated and re-enacted in the previous program, this one reflects upon its events and its meaning through verse and prose and music. The music is again plainsong, but here is choral whereas the former program used only a solo voice. The spoken text is held together by brief quotations from a gospel paraphrase which marks the stations of the passion story and link the successive stages of the meditation: and the meditation itself is both didactic and contemplative, being taken from sermons and prayers and poems. The sources drawn on were: A Fourteenth Century Prose Psalter, John Mirk's Festial, The Lay Folk's Prayer Book, The Pepysian Gospel Harmony, The Southern Passion, The Works of Richard Rolle de Hampole, an anonymous verse meditation of the Rolle school, and various anonymous lyric poems of the period.

In adapting the Middle English of the originals to modern use, I have followed the rule of changing as little as possible. Obsolete words and constructions have been replaced by their nearest modern equivalents, and modern spelling and punctuation have been used throughout; otherwise the texts have not been tampered with. Listeners with unhappy memories of schoolday struggles with Chaucer will, I hope, be agreeably surprised at how far the language barrier is removed by these few minor changes. What I have aimed to do is to amend anything that could create real difficulty, but yet to remain faithful to the qualities of the original language. If I have succeeded, these qualities will come through, and they make the period one of the best in the history of our tongue: for it had then, as it rarely has had since, all of the virtues, being spare and stark but also balanced and graceful, simple and terse and racy but also noble and profound, and everywhere lucid, always exact; it is not for nothing that Richard Rolle has been called the father of Listeners should try to hear both these programs, as one complements the other.

The Doukhobors

EXPLORATIONS looks into the background of these communal people who have attracted the attention of five government commissions since arriving in Canada at the beginning of the century

THE MOST controversial of Canada's minorities are the Doukhobors. There are some 18,000 in Canada, most of them happy, industrious citizens. The extreme fringe group, the fanatic Sons of Freedom, number 2,500, and of these only about 800 constitute a real problem.

The 74,000 original Doukhobors came to Canada at the turn of the century from Batum, Russia, to avoid persecution. Their leader, Peter Verigin, followed them in 1902. He died in 1924.

Three years later his son came to Canada to take over control of the sect. He died in 1939. After the Second World War leadership of the Sons of Freedom was assumed by Stefan Sorokin, a displaced person but not a Doukhobor.

A couple of years ago, J. J. Verigin, who came from Russia as a small boy with his grandmother, mother of Peter Verigin, was unanimously named spiritual leader of the Orthodox Doukhobors. He lives at Grand Forks, B.C., the largest Doukhobor community. His uncle, Peter Verigin the third, died in confinement in Russia.

Between 1907 and 1909, many of the Doukhobors left Saskatchewan, where they had originally settled, to live in British Columbia, where they founded a Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood. Most of the independent Doukhobors who remained on the Prairies have adapted well to Canadian life, owning their own lands and business concerns, sending their children to university, and coming to terms with Canadian laws and customs.

Most of the Orthodox Doukhobors, members of the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ, live at Grand Forks, Passmore Pass Creek and Brilliant, B.C. They believe in communal living and pacifism. They have learned to compromise—they pay taxes, send their children to school and are law abiding.

The remaining minority, the Sons of Freedom, are stubborn in their refusal to adapt to normal Canadian life. It is they who in recent years have been involved in sensational protest marches, in nude parades, in house burnings and dynamitings. It is they who have most strongly nurtured a sense of grievance against Canadian governments. Why do they continue to act in such sensational ways? Why do they still feel persecuted and distrustful? Are their actions self-perpetrated? To what extent are they due to unimaginative attitudes on the part of government officials and other Canadians? These considerations are all involved in the problems of the Sons of Freedom which in turn affects the relationship between Doukhobors of all kinds and their neighbours.

On Wednesday night, April 10, CBC-TV's Explorations presents the first of two programs offering an objective look at the Doukhobors—their history, beliefs, past and present lives, and what has come to be known as the "Doukhobor problem." The programs will be produced in the Vancouver studios by Alex Pratt. They have been researched by George Woodcock, who also appears as interviewer-narrator.

The first program will be mainly historical. Woodcock says: "It will trace the obscure origins of the Doukhobors in 17th-century Russia, will consider

Program Notes

APRIL 6

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

CBXT-Hi-Teens

Teenage singing star Yvette Kramps and host Mike Winlaw present a show for Edmonton teenagers. In addition to regular segments on news, sports and interviews with visiting celebrities, Dr. C. F. Bentley of the University of Alberta discusses with the panel a career in the agricultural field. Producer, Don McRae.

World of Sport

Baseball Today. Steve Douglas and Hal Kelly visit nine major league baseball team training camps in Florida: the National League camps of the Los Angeles Dodgers at Vero Beach; the Cincinnati Redlegs at Tampa; the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Mets at St. Petersburg; and the Milwaukee Braves at West Palm Beach; and the American League camps of the New York Yankees at Fort Lauderdale; the Baltimore Orioles at Miami; and the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland.

World of Sport

Canadian 10-pin Bowling Championships. Ted Reynolds reports the final five games by six finalists in the tourney at Brentwood Lanes, Burnaby, B.C. The finalists are divided into three pairs, each pair bowling a complete game on two adjacent lanes. After a complete game the bowlers change alleys and partners.

CBC Championship Bowling

Fred Sgambati reports the finals in the Ontario Women's Match Five Pins Championship from O'Connor Bowl, Toronto.

Masters Golf

Chris Schenkel, Jack Drees and John Derr report live coverage of the second last day of the 27th Masters Golf Tournament from the Augusta National Golf Club. Total prize money is $109,100, with $20,000 going to the first-place finisher.

Countrytime

1. The Manitoba Winter Fair. Film of the Manitoba Winter Fair held in Brandon including the opening of the Fair, the horse show and displays.

2. Stan Westaway discusses colour for the garden and the seeds which should be sown now.

Alberta Game Farm

The Vanishing Woodsman. The timber wolf is one of the most maligned of all wild animals on North America and almost extinct in the United States because of man's incessant desire to hunt and kill this beautiful creature. Viewers see a large and rustic wolf warren which Al Oeming has constructed and which is home to a pack of five wolves of different variety, including the rare white Arctic wolf.

The Nurses

A Dark World. A nurse, formerly in hospital with mental illness, unconsciously slows a patient's therapy when she relates her own former problems with those of the patient.

Red River Jamboree

This week's guest is yodeller Donn Reynolds. Numbers include:

Saddle Tramp	Stu
Paper of Pins	Peggy
Saddle Up	Altones
Texas Yodel	Donn
I Love the Wide Open Spaces	Group

Juliette

Juliette's special guest is U.S. vocalist Karen Morrow.

CBWT-Thriller

Trio for Terror. This episode contains a trio of stories, each a masterpiece of terror.

Homerun king Roger Maris is one of the baseball stars interviewed and seen in action Saturday as World of Sport presents Baseball Today, a prelude to the season's Game of the Week telecasts.

Young Dancers on Youth Concert

THE THIRD of four Youth Concerts to be seen on CBC Television this season will be presented on Sunday, April 7. The theme of the program will be The Dance, and it will feature West Indian dancer Geoffrey Holder and 14 young students from the National Ballet School in Toronto.

The hour-long telecast falls into three main parts. In the first, a corps de ballet of the 14 ballet school dancers—10 girls and four boys, aged 13 to 18—will take part in Studies, a ballet especially choreographed for the program by Grant Strate, one of the leading dancers with the National Ballet Company, who is also an instructor at the School. Created to music by American composer Samuel Barber, the ballet will depict a typical day in the lives of young trainees at the school as they go through their exercises and classes in dancing. The ballet will show, more graphically than words could do, just what is involved in the arduous training of a dancer.

Special guest Geoffrey Holder is originally from the West Indies, but he now lives in New York City. He will perform two solo dances on the program. The first, entitled Danballah, is a West Indian "dance of the good serpent of the sky," and its musical accompaniment is provided by two congo drums played by Manuel Ramos and Alexander Canbrenen. In the other, Jazz Improvisation, the congo drums are joined by flute, string bass, and regular drums.

The third and final portion of the program will consist of a performance, by the 14 National Ballet School dancers, of a jazz ballet created by Don Gillies to music by Toronto composer Norman Symonds. The music is scored for a jazz group and symphony orchestra and in this performance the orchestra under Mario Bernardi's direction will be joined by the Don Thompson Jazz Quintet.

Program Notes

APRIL 7

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and add'l program information

CBXT—Saturday Heroes

Sportscasters Glenn Bjarnason and Ernie Afaganis turn the sport spotlight on the provincial minor hockey playoffs. Producer, Les MacDiarmid.

Country Calendar

1. The Tyler Commission of three discusses its findings and reviews farm organization.

2. Hartley Sommerfeld of Saskatoon talks about his turkey farm. He keeps Hart Schneider turkeys, consisting of 5,400 hens and 680 toms. His is the largest breeder farm in the province of Saskatchewan.

3. Film of the official opening on April 6 of the new Oakland Hatcheries building in Winnipeg.

Youth Concert

Harry Somers is again host for the third concert in this series, an all-dance program with special guest Geoffrey Holder.

Studies, choreographed by Frank Strate of the National Ballet, is a stylized work about a ballet classroom. Featured are a corps de ballet from the National Ballet School in Toronto, whose members range in age from 13 to 18. The music is Samuel Barber's Souvenirs.

Geoffrey Holder, originally from the West Indies but now living in New York, performs two solo dances. The first is Danballah, the dance of the good serpent of the sky with music provided by two congo drummers. The second is Jazz Improvisation with congo drums, bass, flute and regular drums.

The program closes with Tensions, a jazz ballet choreographed by Don Gillies for 14 dancers. Its music was specially written by Norman Symonds for symphony orchestra and jazz group. The Don Thompson Quintet is featured.

The orchestra is under the direction of Mario Bernardi.

World Of Sport

The Grand National Steeplechase. Peter O'Sullován, Peter Montague-Evans and Robert Haines describe the 127th running of the Grand National from Aintree, England. Horses make 30 jumps during the race, 16 the first time around the course and 14 the second time around. Prize money is £20,000.

Heritage

Vocalist Eleanor Collins sings Gospel songs accompanied by a nine-voice male choir and a five-piece orchestra. The program also includes readings of excerpts from Charles Peguy's Mystery of the Charity of Joan of Arc. Songs include:

Ride On King Jesus
Do Doan You for De Baby
Sing-a-ho for the Wings of a Dove

Timmy's Easter Basket

Juliette is hostess for this year's Timmy Easter Seal show. Among those appearing on the program are Mickey Moore and the Sceptres Quintet; Joyce Sullivan; Charles Camilleri and his Accordion Band; Jan Rubes; a group of Ukrainian dancers; Alex Read Ragtime Band; Tommy Hunter; 48th Highlanders Pipe Band and a group of Scottish dancers; Sandy MacDonald of Hamilton who was Timmy in 1955; Roy Roberts; Trump Davidson and his Dixieland Octet; Paul Freedman; the Singing Cadegans; Joey Hollingsworth; Whipper Billy Watson; and this year's Timmy, David Elliott, nine, of Niagara Falls.

The Nature Of Things

Isaac Newton. Lister Sinclair pays tribute to Isaac Newton. The program attempts to capture the spirit of the time through the words of Newton himself and some of his contemporaries.

Arnold Palmer is defending champion in this year's Masters Golf Tournament. CBC-TV telecasts live on the last two days of the playoffs, Saturday and Sunday.

Walt Disney

When Knighthood Was In Flower. Part 1. First of a two-part story of romance and adventure in 16th century England. Today: for political reasons, King Henry VIII tries to convince his sister, Mary Tudor, that she should marry the ageing king of France. Mary resists all the king's efforts to force her into the marriage and despite grave dangers she falls in love with a young commoner.

Starring Richard Todd, Glynis Johns and James Robertson Justice.

Hazel

Hazel upsets one of George's clients, the new conductor of the local symphony orchestra. Her job hangs in the balance until a magazine article forces a change in the conductor's attitude.

Ed Sullivan

Among performers are comedians Jackie Carter and Bill Dana, and vocalists Frankie Avalon and Anita Gillette.

Bonanza

My Brother's Keeper. The Cartwrights become worried when Adam plans to marry a young woman and move to Philadelphia.

Quest

Two. A program of two short experimental Canadian films.

1. May I Have Your Attention Please. A wry and slightly bitter look at spectator sports.

2. Run. A comment on the conditions of man's life today—a condition of running. Starring William Brydon.

CBXT—Thriller

Yours Truly, Jack the Ripper. An English nobleman confronts American police with a unique theory about a series of recent murders.

ELECTION COVERAGE

ering returns for about 215 of the 265 ridings, but will also make extensive use of the services of The Canadian Press news agency and United Press International.

Television coverage will consist of a 20-minute national and a 10-minute local period in each half hour, a pattern that will be repeated continuously throughout the evening, interrupted only by two newscasts. Program Notes

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

CBXT—Ladies First

1. Co-hosts Jo Everett and Ernie Poscente welcome representatives from the Milk Foundation who show viewers sample portions of the tasty substitutions for common foods.

2. Madelaine Dunkley and Jo finish the headbands of their Easter bonnets and Ernie studies the art of painting Easter eggs. Producer, Don McRae.

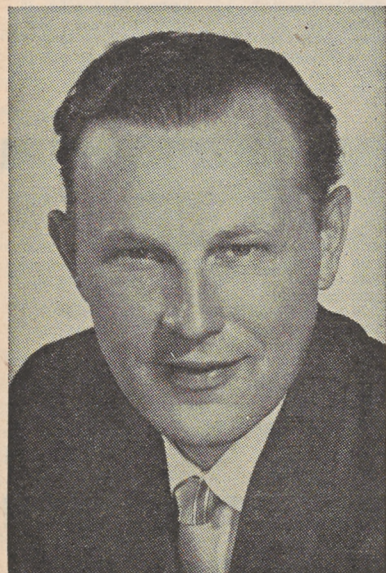

Take Thirty

Guests are folk-singers Valerie Siren and Peter Acker who sing, play and talk about folk-singing and folk-music. Both are students at the University of Toronto—Valerie has recently been awarded a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship.

Scarlett Hill

People in Glass Houses. Continuation of the story begun last Friday in which a once-rich Scarlett Hill family find themselves on the verge of bankruptcy. The widowed daughter finds a job with the local market gardeners and also finds romance.

Starring Jan Rubes and Frances Tobias with Margot Christie and Jacob Reinglas.

Jan Rubes stars this week in the Scarlett Hill episode People in Glass Houses. He is seen as well Sunday on Timmy's Easter Basket, in his more familiar role as a singer.

CBWT—Ladies First

1. A discussion on the Easter Seal Campaign.

2. Anne Dowton continues with her series of making spring hats.

Razzle Dazzle

1. Howard salutes station CBOT in Ottawa.

2. The Razzle Dazzle Hit Parade is introduced by Howard Mellowtone of Station C-O-W and the Pick of the Pops is presented.

CBXT—Tales of the Riverbank

Roderick's New Boat. After a great deal of commotion around Rat's house, the other animals finally discover that he has been building himself a new boat.

CBXT—Gateway—

1. Space. Ian McLennan of the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium in Edmonton follows through developments from the Russian launching of Sputnik 1 and Sputnik 2 up to the launching of the first American satellite, Explorer 1.

2. Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and teammates, describe and demonstrate the basic fundamentals of baseball, from hitting and fielding to stealing and pitching. Producer, David Smiley.

Canadian Federal Election

Norman DePoe is national reporter and Bruce Marsh is national anchorman. Knowlton Nash chairs a panel of experts who comment individually and as a group as the news breaks.

Coverage comprises a 20-minute national and a 10-minute local period each half-hour, and continues until the make-up of Canada's 26th Parliament is known and the complete national story is reported. Included are on-the-spot statements by the four major party leaders, and "live" news reports from all 10 provinces and from Europe for the first time on Canadian television.

French and British reaction is via the U.S. National Aeronautical and Space Administration's communications satellite, Relay. In Toronto an IBM 1401 computer provides popular vote percentages, scans the overall flow of returns, makes comparisons with the results of previous elections and projects the probable make-up of the new parliament.

SPORTS

By
Ken
Reeves

CBC
Regina
Sportscaster

THIS WEEK CBC Television cameras provide the millions of sports fans in Canada with what may be the best and most extensive coverage of sport ever provided anywhere, beginning with major league baseball on Saturday and winding up with film coverage of the Grand National Steeplechase on Sunday.

Commentators Steve Douglas and Hal Kelly visit nine Major League training camps in Florida, Saturday, to bring you coverage of baseball's top teams and stars. These well-known sportscasters will interview such stars of the game as Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris of the world champion New York Yankees, who are defending their title with what Mickey Mantle describes as the best of all the Yankee teams he ever went to training camp with. Stan Musial, the 42-year-old veteran of the St. Louis Cardinals will also be among those interviewed, while films of batting, infield and pitching practice will be shown as well as some shots of inter-squad games among the Los Angeles Dodgers.

NHL playoff action will be seen during the week, as league champion Toronto Maple Leafs battle third-place Montreal Canadiens, and Chicago Black Hawks play off against Detroit Red Wings to decide the finalists. Actual dates of the games were not known at press time.

For golfers, one of the finest and most gruelling tournaments of the year will be carried live on Saturday and Sunday as CBC takes in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Georgia. This year the Masters has a total prize money of $109,000 including $20,000 for the winner.

CBXT—How to Marry a Millionaire

Three glamorous fortune-hunters attend a stockholders' meeting in hopes of finding a wealthy spouse.

National School Telecasts

Current Events. (Ages 12-15). Each program deals with a single event, country or personality in the news with the emphasis both on historical background and current significance.

Mammals and Birds of Canada. The last in a series of four 20-minute programs featuring a group of interesting animals that should be familiar to every young Canadian.

Today, The Family of Woodpeckers. The habits of two Canadian insectivores are illustrated through a comparison of the woodpecker and the warbler. Certain species of both families are observed — among the woodpeckers, the Hairy, the Downy, the Pileated, the Red-headed, the Flicker, the Yellowbellied Sapsucker; among the warblers, the Myrtle, the Bay-crested, the Yellow, the Black and White, the Black-throated Green Warbler and the American Redstart.

Take Thirty

1. Paul Fox comments on the results of the nation's vote.

2. Gwen Vernon presents the fifth of her spring exercise sessions.

3. Walk Through San Miguel. Dodi Butchart, a young Canadian photographer, shows pictures she took on a recent trip to Mexico.

Scarlett Hill

People in Glass Houses. Continuation of the story in which the widowed daughter of a once-wealthy Scarlett Hill family applies for a job with the local market gardeners but keeps it a secret from her snobbish mother.

Ladies First

Marriage counsellor Mitchell C. Neiman discusses a recent study of 4,000 marriages which failed. The causes of breakdown from the point of view of the wife, the husband and the marriage counsellor are intriguingly different, and Neiman endeavours to examine these differences.

Razzle Dazzle

Mr. Showbiz and the Turtlesell Players bring us a historical drama about the French Revolution based on the novel, the Scarlet Pimpernel. The play is entitled Come the Revolution or This Way to the Bastille. Michele

Finney plays La Comtesse la Michele Antoinette; Al Hambone, the Prefect of Police; Tom Kneebone, the dauntless Englishman, Scoreless Supper-pickle; and George Feyer, Pepe.

CBXT—Gateway

Frank Pickering discusses what's new in 1963 in the line of camping equipment.

CBWT—Spotlight

Chuck Skelding speaks with Inspector Neil Clarke of the traffic Division, Winnipeg Police Department, on City Traffic problems. Producer, Ted Benoit.

CBWT—Hi Jinks

Talented high school students ranging in age from 15 to 19, compete for cash awards. Adjudicators are Dave Robertson, Ken Winters and Jack Shapira. Producer, Don Browne-Wilkinson.

Appearing this week are: pianist Marie Paule Sala; accordionist Michael Moskal; vocalist Barbara Dumas; tap dancing duet Len and Sandy Rosolowich; and a wind quintet consisting of Larry Strange, Igor Zahynacz, Jim Manashen, Mendel Malkin and Yvonne Morris.

CBXT—Our Man Higgins

Higgins' talent for handicapping race horses leads to confusion in the MacRoberts household and nets him some unsavoury friends.

CBWT—Our Man Higgins

Higgins tries to make a lady out of Alice's boisterous Aunt Sadie so that the woman won't disgrace the MacRoberts at a social tea.

CBWT—The Dakotas

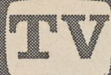

Red Sky Over Bismarck. Marshal Ragen saves an innocent Indian youth from the pent-up fury of a misguided mob.

English prose or that Langland is thought by some to have been unexcelled by any subsequent poet.

These qualities of language, however, are only important because they reflect qualities of mind. The special virtue of Rolle and his contemporaries was the conviction with which they loved God and the power with which they expressed that conviction. They describe the passion and respond to it, not as a remote historical event, but as a present fact, as close and tangible as the air they breathe, as painful as real nails in their own real flesh: to them (whatever the anachronisms) Jesus walks on the streets of their town, wears the clothes of their time and speaks its tongue, and dies on the hill outside their window; and it is this sense of immediacy which comes out of their work, far more than any feeling of period—in fact, the style has a curiously modern ring as though the story were being told for the first time in words that had not been used before. The effect of this on the reader is a healthy shock: for the story and its meaning lose the remote, hieratic air which the King James version imparts and come close instead, as close as everyday, and touch the heart and occupy the mind. This is the function of truth. And the truths of the passion too seldom reach their mark. With Rolle they never miss.

Toody and Muldoon, New York's most confused cops, show the lighter side of the battle between good and evil Tuesdays on Car 54, Where Are You?

Program Notes

APRIL 10

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

CBXT—How to Marry a Millionaire

As a publicity stunt, Loco masquerades as a teenager and gushes over a popular rock 'n roll singer.

CBXT—Ladies First

1. New imported fashions available in Edmonton for 1963 are modelled.
2. Helen Bentley continues her sewing classes. Producer, Don McRae.

Take Thirty

1. Dancing instructor Agota Gabor teaches Paul the "Merengue." This is a South American step which is very simple, but its effectiveness relies on the stance.

2. This being National Library Week, Paul visits the London Library Community Centre where he talks to Dean Kent, meets some of the people and watches some of the activity of this busy place.

Scarlett Hill

People in Glass Houses. Continuation of the week-long serialized drama in which a young woman whose parents are on the verge of bankruptcy seeks to help them by secretly finding a job with the local market gardeners.

CBWT—Ladies First

1. Hatchery owner George Lis talks about Easter chicks and ducklings.

2. Gerdine Crawford offers more hints on sewing.

Razzle Dazzle

1. Mr. Sharpy has turned himself into an artist and interior decorator much to the surprise of the Alley.

2. Alfred Hiccup introduces a new film produced by Epic Films and Cranky Pictures — a comedy called Curbide Capers.

3. Howard I. Threadneedle reads poetry.

CBXT—Gateway

1. Farm Focus. Al Richardson and Dick Bocking follow the steps in the handling of championship steers from the time they leave the Edmonton Spring Livestock Show ring until they reach the consumer.

2. The fifth in the series for aspiring young baseball players dealing with bunting and other sacrifice plays.

CBWT—Spotlight

Boating and Water Safety. Beginning a new series about boats and safety while boating. Today, Maurice Burchell talks with Jim Eberts about hulls and hull designs of boats. Producer, Ted Benoit.

CBXT—Reach For The Top

Colin MacLean moderates as two panel teams compete in this quiz game. This week the Devon and Leduc high schools compete with Fort Saskatchewan and Horse Hill high schools.

My Three Sons

A sick bird provides the Douglas boys with an emergency in which they have a difficult time proving their worth.

Parade

The Billy Van Four. The show opens with an artistic number, "Paint by Numbers" in which members of the group are introduced: tenor Billy Van, second tenor Les Leigh, bass Jack Northmore and lead singer Patti Van. Other production numbers include a dixie medley by the boys, and a wistful comedy number sung by Patti as the ultimate hockey fan, "I'm In Love with Foster Hewitt."

Ben Casey

Rage Against the Dying Light. A distinguished architect whose cherished desire is to design a cathedral, confronts Casey with a difficult problem when he becomes partially paralyzed.

Explorations

The Doukhobors. Part 1. First of a two-part series produced at CBC Vancouver. Interviewer is George Woodcock. Producer, Alex Pratt. Tonight's program traces the origin of the Doukhobors in 17th century Russia and their emigration to Canada in 1898-9, after severe persecution in Russia.

THE NATURE OF THINGS

ISAAC NEWTON

The Boy on the Seashore

HE WAS A lonely man, voyaging alone through strange seas of thought. He was a strange man, who believed that he could reach the secrets of God and nature by the power of mind. To accomplish this he felt he must have no distractions, no diversions. He paid a high price for his success: friendship, love, fatherhood. But he saw poetry and beauty in science, and this was part of his reward. "If I have seen further than others," he said, looking back, "it is because I have stood on the shoulders of giants"—Copernicus, Kepler, Descartes, Galileo.

On Christmas Day, 1642, the year Galileo died in Italy, a farmer's wife in Lincolnshire, England, gave birth to a baby so tiny that he could have fitted easily into a quart jug. Within 25 years he was so big intellectually that the world could not contain his thoughts. They stretched out into infinity.

His father, Isaac Newton, for whom he was named, had died four months before the boy was born. When her son was three, Mrs. Newton married again and moved away, leaving him to the care of his grandmother. He attended the village school, then, when he was 12, was sent to a boys' school in Grantham, where, between (and often during) lessons he learned how to make birds drunk, memorized a recipe for a "sure" fish-bait, mastered conjuring tricks, carved his name on his desk, made model windmills, and found his curiosity about the universe beginning to simmer. Already he had picked up Galileo's torch.

He had been at school only a few months when his step-father died. His mother came home with her three children and took young Isaac out of school to help work the farm. He hated the life

The Man Who Cheered The Leafs

CBXT—How to Marry a Millionaire

Two of the girls seek a third roommate to share their expensive apartment. They become involved in several unusual incidents when their ad gets mixed up with that of a theatrical couple.

National School Telecasts

Shakespeare's Hamlet. (Senior high schools). A repeat showing of the five-part Hamlet series telecast in the fall schedule from October 16 to November 13. The series was produced by Associated-Rediffusion in Great Britain. The five episodes correspond to the five acts of the play except that Act III, scene 1, is included in the second episode. Also, extensive cuts have had to be made.

Today, Act V. (Conclusion of the play).

Take Thirty

Barbara Greene introduces viewers to a Portuguese family living in Toronto. She explains how the family members are trained to earn a living, how they feel in their new city and how they manage with their language problems and their new way of life.

Scarlett Hill

People in Glass Houses. Conclusion of the story in which a young woman falls in love with the local market gardener when she seeks employment to help her once-wealthy Scarlett Hill family.

Ladies First

1. Mat Gauer prepares breaded scallops with a delicious sauce.

2. Alice Poyser reviews publishers' spring lists and suggests some of her reasons for selections of particularly readable books.

Razzle Dazzle

1. Swami and Al take a look at the future in Swami's crystal ball and see a Chinese magician, Mandarin Tee Hee up to some surprising tricks.

2. Another adventure with Boomer Foghorn is seen in Howard's comic strip.

Scarlet Pimpernel

Thanksgiving Day. The Scarlet Pimpernel goes to the rescue of an American lady who has been imprisoned in Paris.

CBXT—Dobie Gillis

Dobie unwittingly picks out for himself a highly contagious disease with which to gain the attention of a beautiful nurse.

The Defenders

The Colossus. The Prestons are faced with the problem of defending a Nobel Prize-winning scientist who, having murdered his wife, places himself above the law because of his world-wide reputation as a research scientist.

Playdate

The Man Who Cheered the Leafs, by Leslie McFarlane. A father has serious objections to "signing over" his hockey-mad son to play for a National Hockey League farm club.

Starring Austin Willis and Charmion King with Peter Kastner and Beth Morris. Produced by Henry Kaplan.

CBWT—Hitchcock Presents

Last Seen Wearing Blue Jeans. A young British teenager touring the U.S. with her parents accidentally falls asleep in the wrong car and is transported to the scene of a brutal murder.

CBWT—Biography

Henry Ford. (1863-1947). The story of the farm boy turned mechanic who built the first gasoline motor car. In 1903 he formed the Ford Motor Company, which, by World War II had offices or plants in 33 countries. One of the principles on which he founded the Ford industries was: "An absence of fear of the future or veneration for the past. . . . What is past is useful only as it suggests ways and means for progress." Under his wage program and the constant lowering of prices, the company by 1940 had produced more than 28 million cars.

Distinguished British actor Leo Genn is guest star Thursday on The Defenders, a realistic legal drama series.

PLAYWRIGHT Leslie McFarlane, who has been a hockey fan for 50 years, has written a drama on the subject for this Thursday night's Playdate, April 11. Titled The Man Who Cheered the Leafs, it tells of a father who has serious objections to "signing over" his son, who is crazy about hockey, to play for a National Hockey League farm club.

Leslie McFarlane recalls that as a lad he saw some wild games in the old Haileybury, Ontario, rink, the Plaza, which was half rink, half theatre, in the days of seven-man hockey. That's when he became an ardent fan of the game. He remembers seeing the names of Duke Keats and Newsy Lalonde painted on the dressing-room wall. Later, when he became a sports writer in Sudbury, in the great days of the Sudbury Wolves and Soo Greyhounds, he had the good fortune to see Bill and Bun Cook, Shorty and Red Green, Bill Phillips, Babe Donnelly, Charlie Langlois and the Duncan brothers when they were in their prime.

McFarlane went on to become one of the first hockey commentators, back in the '20s before radio had found its feet. He would dictate play-by-play accounts of the games in Sudbury and the Soo to a telephone operator, who would then send them by leased wire into theatres, where they would be read to packed houses from the stage. Then in the '30s McFarlane made his living writing hockey fiction for magazines. He even managed an amateur club for a season. So it's obvious that he loves the game. But he does so with reservations, he says.

He was inspired to write The Man Who Cheered the Leafs by

Program Notes

APRIL 12

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and add'l program information

The Green Pastures

Based on a play by Marc Connelly who also did the screenplay and directed the film. Intended as a modern folk drama, the film retells well-known episodes from the Scriptures in simple, child-like terms.

The all-negro cast is headed by Rex Ingram, Eddie Anderson and Oscar Polk and includes many non-professional actors.

CBWT—Ladies First

1. A pictorial visit to Palestine with Dr. Edgar File, minister of Robertson Memorial United Church.

2. Ruth Dyker's weekend shopping ideas.

Razzle Dazzle

Top of a Continent. A half-hour film about the people living in the North West Territories—Eskimo, Indian and white man.

CBXT—Stu Davis

A visit with singer Stu Davis, for 15 minutes of western songs.

Today, Stu tells a special Easter story entitled Little Cowboy Church, and sings:

Little Cowboy Church
Easter
Peter Cottontail

Friday Island

The Grizzly Cougars. Tadpole is appointed the go-between when two clubs, the Cougars and the Grizzlies, wish to amalgamate. (This show concludes the series).

CBXT—Gateway

1. Co-hosts Jim Crossen and Jim Schrumm present the sixth in a series on baseball in which Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers and teammates describe and demonstrate the basic fundamentals of baseball, from hitting and fielding to stealing and pitching. Today, Baseball Equipment.

2. Man-on-the-Street Interviews. This regular Friday feature also is presented.

CBWT—Spotlight

Spotlight on the Legislature. Each Friday during the current session of the Manitoba Legislature, Spotlight includes comments from informed observers on important developments during the preceding week's business in the House.

In His Steps

An hour-long program consisting of film shot during a visit to the Holy Land by a CBC film unit. Directed by Paul Almond.

The Place of the Skull

The story of the Crucifixion and Resurrection of Christ told in songs and music, scored for voices and guitars. Performers include singers Eleanor Collins, Charles Jordan and Mary Morrison. Narrator is Peter Donat.

Christendom Today

CBC Newsmagazine presents a special report on the state of Christianity. It includes a report from Washington correspondent Knowlton Nash who deals with church membership figures in North and South America, tolerance among denominations, how the U.S.'s first Catholic president has fared, and the resurgence of evangelism in the U.S. over the past few years.

Paris correspondent Stanley Burke talks about the various denominations in Europe, the Ecumenical Council, liberalism in the church in Germany and France and conservatism of the clergy in Spain and Italy. London correspondent Morley Safer talks about the church in the United Kingdom and the church in Soviet-influenced countries.

There is also a discussion between four men of varied professions in the Canadian church: the Rev. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer; Father J. M. Kelly, principal of St. Michael's College; Bishop George Snell of the Anglican Church of Canada; and Dr. W. J. Gallagher of the Canadian Council of Churches.

An Act Of Worship

From St. Nicholas Church (Eastern Rite) viewers see parts of two services. The first is from the Vespers for Good Friday, showing the burial of the Ikon, representing Christ's burial after He was taken from the Cross. The second part, from the service for Holy Saturday, shows mourners gathered around the tomb of Christ.

The 50-voice St. Nicholas Church choir is under the direction of Professor J. Kowaliw. Brian Freeland, assistant supervisor of religious programs on the CBC says this is the first time the two ceremonies have been televised in Canada. Produced by Franz Kraemer.

CBWT—Anthology

A half-hour film drama.

APRIL 6

2:00 p.m.—Metropolitan Opera

Boris Godounoff, by Modeste Mousorgsky. Musical drama in Prologue and four acts.

Cast: Jerome Hines, Nicolai Gedda, Giorgio Tozzi, Mignon Dunn and Lorenzo Alvary. Conducted by Georg Solti.

Dramatis Personae: Boris Godounoff, the Czar—baritone; Feodor, his son—mezzo-soprano; Xenia, his daughter—soprano; Marina, a courtesan—mezzo-soprano; Prince Schouisky—tenor; Tchellakoff—baritone; Pimen a monk—bass; Gregory, the pretended Dimitri—tenor; two vagabonds, citizens, courtiers, officers, monks, etc. Time, 1598-1605. Place, Russia.

Prologue: Scene 1. Courtyard of a monastery. A mob clamours for Boris Godounoff to become their Czar. It is felt, however, that Boris is a usurper who has been guilty of the murder of Dimitri, the Czarevitch.

Scene 2. Square in front of the Kremlin. Boris has yielded to the carefully staged demand on the part of the people and is publicly crowned.

Act I. Scene 1. Interior of a monastery. The aged monk, Pimen, is engaged in writing the history of the time. Gregory, a novice, learns the tragic story of the death of Dimitri and the accession of Boris. He inwardly resolves to proclaim himself the lost heir to the throne.

Scene 2. An inn on the Russian border. While the hostess of an inn goes singing about her work, a fugitive arrives in haste and demands shelter. It is Gregory who has escaped from the monastery and is trying to get over the border in order to further his plot against the throne. Police arrive in search of the pretender but Gregory escapes through a window.

Act II. The Czar's palace. Xenia sorrows for the death of her lover, Dimitri. Boris enters and greets his children. When the Prince enters, Boris upbraids him for his duplicity, but the Prince protests that he is loyal. He has seen the pretended Dimitri in order to learn what kind of man he is. At the mention of Dimitri's name, Boris changes colour and begins to ply him with questions. Finally he dismisses him in order to hide his own terror-stricken condition.

Act III. Marina's Apartments. Marina, an adventuress in the employ of the Jesuits, seeks to entangle Gregory into her net. Gregory meets her in the garden and the two exchange vows of love. In this scene a Polish national dance is staged while the guests sing: "On to Moscow and to victory!" The duet between the lovers is punctuated by the seductive mazurka rhythm of the Polish.

Act IV. Scene 1. A street. A crowd rushes through the streets clamouring as loudly for the supposed Dimitri as they had previously shouted for Boris. Gregory arrives and is greeted as the true Czar while the mob rushes to storm the palace.

Scene 2. Hall of the Duma. While the Duma is in session Prince Schouisky arrives and states that he believes Czar Boris to be demented. He is interrupted by the entrance of Boris who violently denounces his enemies and asserts his own innocence. Pimen enters and tells of a supposed miracle that took place at the grave of Dimitri. Boris again grows violent, giving evidence of insanity. He summons his son Feodor several incidents in recent hockey seasons. Probably the starting point was an editorial in the Hamilton Spectator about big-league sponsorship of hockey in that city a while ago, under the control of the Police Athletic Association. McFarlane saw a television plot in the problem of a parent who tried to reconcile a desire to see his son play hockey, with resentment at having big league "farm system" methods invading his son's life. The play was in the production planning stage in January when a series of articles in the Toronto Globe and Mail raised many of the points brought up in the play. And the day rehearsals began, the subject of big-league control of young hockey players was raised in the Ontario Legislature.

McFarlane says the one person he didn't approach for an opinion was his son, who was once a first-class forward for Inkerman Rocketts and who earned his college education through a hockey scholarship to St. Lawrence University. Young McFarlane is now a sports-caster over CFTO-TV, Toronto. McFarlane says he's anxious to hear what his son thinks of the play — he hasn't even seen the script, yet.

McFarlane points out that the opinions expressed in the play by various characters, some of them highly critical, are not necessarily his own. "I'm a playwright, not an editorialist," he says.

The Met's Giant Basso

AMONG BASSOS the title role in Moussorgsky's Boris Godounov is operatic loot which few can resist. The lucky singer who steps into Boris' boots not only has two long, important scenes in which he can show off his voice to perfection, a couple of bloody hallucinations calling for hysteria, raving and temple-pounding ad infinitum, and a final scene in which he falls to his death down a flight of steps—but he also gets to wear some of opera's most magnificent costumes.

The first American-born singer to try the role was Jerome Hines, nine years ago with the Metropolitan Opera, and he has repeated it since with great success. He appears again as Boris this Saturday, April 6, in the broadcast from the Met on CBC radio at 2:00, with Georg Solti conducting, and Nicolai Gedda as Grigori; Giorgio Tozzi as Brother Pimen; Mignon Dunn as Marina; and Lorenzo Alvary as Varlaam.

To help him understand Boris' problems better, when he first sang the role, Hines consulted seven psychiatrists about the Russian's character and personality. His own theory is that Boris was an hysteric and manic-depressive whose chest-heaving and thumping were to be expected in one of that temperament, and that his death, the reason for which is not made clear in the libretto, was probably due to a cerebral hemorrhage. "Of course I didn't try to make a case history out of him," says Hines. "Once I understood the motivation I forgot about it and sang the part." On tour last fall he sang Boris in Russian at the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow and in other Soviet cities.

With his rugged stage make-up and his great height, Hines makes an impressive Boris. He's 6 feet 6½ inches tall, and the only time he has ever had to look up to a fellow performer on stage was, of course, in Texas, in a performance of Die Walküre, where a last-minute substitute turned out to be 6 feet 9 inches tall. Hines' height is a decided advantage in most stage productions. The only time it has held him back was when he tried to join the U.S. Army. He was half an inch too tall for military service, so he worked as a chemist for an oil company during the Second World War.

Hines' father, a Hollywood production manager, saw that his lanky son had singing lessons, but for a while young Jerry was more interested in putting around the chemistry lab he had rigged up on his back porch. After he had sung his first role (as Bill Bobstay in HMS Pinafore) at 18, he decided he wanted a singing career. First he won a degree in mathematics and chemistry at the University of California at Los Angeles. After the war his singing teacher arranged an audition at the Met and Hines was hired immediately. Now, at 41, he's the leading basso there. He also gives between 35 and 40 concerts a year, and is guest star in various foreign opera houses.

His consuming interest outside opera is evangelical work. On his tours around the world he frequently visits the soup-and-salvation kitchens in the slums to sing for the derelicts there, and at home in the States his wife, former opera star Lucia Evangelista, and their young sons often join him as musical missionaries. He has been active in the Billy Graham crusade and as chairman of New York's Christian Arts Fellowship. He has written an opera, I Am the Way, dealing with the life of Christ, which is to be part of a trilogy ending with the Resurrection. When asked if his evangelical work influences his operatic career, he said, "I try to confine my repertory to operas with great significance to mankind."

At university, through a friend majoring in psychology, Hines developed a great interest in hypnosis. A faculty specialist taught him scientific techniques of hypnosis, and Hines says what he learned about self-hypnosis and auto-suggestion have saved him as an artist many a time. Once, at the Edinburgh Festival, just before going on stage, his throat suddenly became terribly dry. He didn't feel at all nervous and was at a loss to explain the frightening sensation. As the seconds ticked by and it was almost time for him to go on stage, he summoned all his powers of suggestion to tell himself that he was about to bite into a lemon. "I persuaded myself that I had the lemon in my hand, and after a seemingly ageless time my mouth began to water," he recalls. He stepped on stage, feeling quite normal, and as usual the critics applauded the rich, resonant, pure bass notes of his voice. But he kept that imaginary lemon in his hand all through the performance.

Self-hypnosis helps him to relax and clear his head during particularly hectic seasons. Before every Met performance he flings himself into a chair in his dressing room and "lets go" from the toes up, and sometimes relaxes so completely that the call-boy has to pound on the door to rouse him!

The final two days of this world-renowned tournament will be carried and if it doesn't provide some of the most exciting and well-played golf of the year, the rest of the tournaments will have to be terrible because the Masters, in addition to being one of the toughest, is usually the most highly competitive.

As mentioned earlier, the 127th running of the Grand National from Aintree, England, will give all CBC racing fans more than their share of fine horse racing entertainment.
This race is one of the few fine steeplechase races still going and, it goes without saying, the most dangerous. The race itself was run on March 30th and this Sunday's showing will be a filmed version.

From Burnaby, British Columbia,
the Canadian 10 pin bowling championships give headline coverage to those bowlers who toil in the shadow — at least as far as TV is concerned — of the 5-pinnars. The final five games between the six finalists in the tournament will be shown.

their record in the Crimea and the Caucasus, their emigration from Russia after severe persecutions, their dissenting beliefs, their aspirations towards Christian communalism, their cult of leadership. It will also present their history in Canada from the early years on the Prairies to the migration to British Columbia, and the record of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood until its end."

"The second program, on April 17, will deal with the Doukhobors today, their way of life in the 1960s, and the various factions among them—Independents, Orthodox Doukhobors, and Sons of Freedom, the difficulties that have arisen between the Doukhobors and government in Canada, and possible solutions."

Those heard from in both programs include Koozma J. Tarasoff, a graduate student in anthropology at the University of British Columbia, formerly a member of a Doukhobor community and now an Independent Doukhobor; Stuart M. Jamieson, professor of economics, UBC, and member of the 1953 consultive committee on Doukhobors;
Hugh Herbison, a resident of the Quaker community at Argenta, an authority on Doukhobor religion, and a member of the 1953 committee; Alexander W.

Wainman, professor in the department of Slavonic
Studies, UBC, and member of the 1953 committee;
Joseph E. Podovnikoff, a spokesman for the Sons of Freedom; and John J. Verigin, Orthodox Doukhobor leader.

Heard in the first program only will be Gabriel
W. Vereschagin, a member of the 1898-99 emigration from Russia; William Koochin, Vancouver sculptor and former member of a Doukhobor community; Peter Maloff, former member of the Sons of Freedom; William A. Soukoreff, former secretary-treasurer of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, Limited; and Cecil W. Koochin, former director of the CCUB, and a personal friend of Peter Verigin I.

Taking part in the second program only will be Sidney B. Simons, a defense attorney in recent trials of Doukhobors; Marie Shlakoff, a member of the Sons of Freedom; Eli A. Popoff, Doukhobor Sunday School director, member of the Grand Forks school-board, and former editor of a Doukhobor paper;
John J. Semenoff, secretary of a Doukhobor youth council; Peter P. Legebokoff, editor of a Doukhobor paper; Sergei Rilkoff, Sunshine Valley co-operative manager; and The Honourable Robert W. Bonner, Q.C., Attorney-General for British Columbia.

Music on Radio

9:15 a.m.—Morning Concert
(CBW only)

Recorded music prepared by Tom Taylor.

The Boyd Neel Orchestra under the direction of Boyd Neel:

The Water MusicHandel

9:30 p.m.—Classical Strings

From Vancouver. Under the direction of John Avison. Soloist is trumpeter Kenneth Hopkins.

Symphony for StringsHonegger
Prayer of St. GregoryHovanness

11:00 p.m.—Late Concert

(11:10 p.m. on CBX)

Another in the current LISTENING BOOTH series, presenting an all-Mozart program of orchestral music.

The symphony represents a new departure for the composer that demonstrates the principle of a "germ cell" relationship of the themes between the first and fourth movements.

The violin concerto represents an amalgam of two national styles. An Italian penchant for mere dialogue between soloist and orchestra is made to serve logical statement by framing the musical argument in German sonata-form. Producer, Benjamin Horch.

1. The Vienna Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Ferenc Fricsay. Symphony No. 29 in A major, K. 201Mozart

2. Aeterna Chamber Orchestra under the direction of Frederic Waldman and featuring violinist Erica Morini.

Concerto No. 5 in A major for Violin and OrchestraMozart

Ed McCurdy is heard Thursday at 8:00 p.m. as Radio International continues its presentation of Canadian folksingers.

forced on him. Fortunately, a clergyman uncle intervened and had him sent back to classes in Grantham, to prepare for university. Isaac proved not only adept at studies but at working with his hands, and built up quite a local reputation as a maker of water clocks and sundials.

At 18 he entered Trinity College, Cambridge, and took his bachelor's degree, but not, surprisingly, with honours, though the remarkable breadth of his mind and the intricacies of science and philosophy which he had grasped and explored further had impressed his professors. The year of his graduation, the plague came to Cambridge.

During the next couple of years Newton kept pretty much to his home in Lincolnshire, laying the foundations for some of his most noteworthy experiments and theories, including those concerning gravitation, the binomial theorem, colours, and fluxions. In the family home at Woolsthorpe, looking out on the rolling green of England, he first began to see the frame of the System of the World. He saw that the universe was under law and that man could prove it.

In 1667, he became a Fellow of Trinity, and was made mathematics professor two years later, after one of his old professors had resigned his chair so that the brilliant young scholar could take it. Newton was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1672, and his fame spread. He was made Master of the Mint, was knighted by Queen Anne, and when he died at 85, this lonely, sagacious, faithful farmer's son was buried in Westminster Abbey among kings. From the tower of his strength and ideas we still see the shape of things to come. Each time a rocket orbits the earth the computers use Newton's expression of the laws. His was an almost supernatural force of mind. And his spirit kept pace with it.

It is hard for modern sophisticates to imagine the concepts of natural laws which were accepted by men when Newton first came among them. The spirit of his time and the personality of the great scientist-philosopher is captured with delicate touch on CBC-TV's The Nature of Things this Sunday, April 7, in a program called The Boy on the Seashore. (There is a possibility that the program may be pre-empted if the Masters' Golf Tournament game, scheduled for Sunday afternoon, continues beyond the allotted time. In that case the Newton program will be re-scheduled to April 28).

The title for the program is taken from some remarks of Newton's, as he looked back over his decades of achievement. "I do not know what I may appear to the world," he said, "but to myself I seem to have been only a boy playing on the seashore, and diverting myself in now and then finding another pebble, or a prettier shell than ordinary, while the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me."

Written and narrated by Lister Sinclair, the program was filmed in England, and has been in preparation since August. It captures the temper of the time through the words of Newton himself and some of his contemporaries, with the Water Music of another contemporary, Handel, in the background to highlight the mood of the program. Gillie Fenwick is heard as the voice of Newton.

The camera visits the places where Newton trod, played, studied and finally was laid to rest, the spots where he experimented with and laid bare some of the great scientific mysteries of the universe—his old farm home, snuggled into the countryside, a safe little refuge from commercial complexities; the school where he studied and dreamed; the gracious, lawn-spread campus where he prowled through revolutionary ideas and came upon untold scientific treasures, and where he later helped other groping young men to peer into and explore the bottomless depths of scientific knowledge; the "digs" where he lived his lonely bachelor existence; the site of his famous small laboratory; and the articles he left behind, including the little telescope made by him and now the cherished property of the Royal Society.

And, of course, there will be many glimpses of Newton himself, in oils, stone, metal, showing his strong jaw and determined, brooding expression. He was a difficult man, his contemporaries report. He had many of the qualities of the solitary. He was highly fearful, cautious and suspicious, ambitious, insidious, delighting in praise and hating to be contradicted.

John Livingston organized The Boy on the Seashore. Production is by James Murray.

COOK'S TOUR

with Mat Gauer

RECIPES FEATURED ON
"LADIES FIRST" EACH THURSDAY

SALMON LOAF

- 1 lb. canned salmon
- 1 cup mushroom pieces
- 1 to 2 tbsp. butter
- 1 tbsp. flour
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped green pepper
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped green onion
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped celery
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup dry bread or cracker crumbs
- 1 egg
- $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 cup evaporated milk or mushroom liquid
- Salt and pepper to taste

Flake salmon, put into bowl.

Saute mushrooms, pepper, onion and celery in butter. Sprinkle on flour, gradually add milk or water from mushrooms, stirring until consistency of medium sauce. Remove from heat and beat in one egg.

To salmon, add bread crumbs and seasoning, then fold in sauce.

Put into greased casserole and place in pan of hot water. Bake 350° for 40 minutes.
